1. General warning

Trading forex, CFDs and fixed-time (binary) options carries a high level of risk and is not suitable for everyone. You can lose all the money you invest. Only trade with money you can afford to lose. If you are unsure, get independent advice.

2. Leverage

CFDs are leveraged: a small price movement can produce a large loss or gain relative to your margin. Losses can exceed your initial deposit for a position, although negative balance protection limits your total loss to the funds in your account.

3. Fixed-time (binary) options

- Each option has an all-or-nothing outcome. If the price is not on the side you chose at expiry, you lose the full amount invested in that trade.
- The payout on a winning trade is less than 100% of the amount risked, so over many trades with an even chance of winning you are likely to lose money.
- Short expiry times (seconds or minutes) make outcomes close to random and can lead to fast, repeated losses.
- Options cannot be sold or closed early unless the platform offers that feature, at a price set by us.
- We are the counterparty to your options trades.

4. Market risks

Prices can move fast and gap, especially around news, weekends and holidays. Stop-loss orders do not guarantee the price you set. Cryptocurrency CFDs are especially volatile and may be affected by exchange outages, regulation and low liquidity.

5. Counterparty and execution

We act as counterparty to your trades, which creates a potential conflict of interest that we manage through our internal policies. Prices may differ from those of other providers.

6. Technology risks

Internet failures, platform outages, delays or hacking may prevent you from placing or closing trades.

7. Other

Overnight swaps, currency conversion and fees affect results. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Tax is your responsibility. Our services are not regulated by a financial services authority in your country, and you may not have access to an investor compensation scheme.
